Honoring the Past, Planning for the Future

A sensitive restoration and expansion maintained the architectural integrity of Laughlin Hall, the oldest building on campus.

Aniversaries are more than simply milestones in the life of a college. Such celebratory occasions offer opportunities to reflect on the road already taken as well as the road yet to be traveled. So it was at Lebanon Valley College as we celebrated our 125th birthday.

The long and rich history of the college reveals a pattern of risk-taking, tenacity, service and faith. In 1866, despite opposition from within their ranks to the very idea of higher education, the college founders forged ahead to establish the kind and quality of institution they knew was needed. It took vision and courage. This legacy of liberal education, this cherished commitment to quality, has persisted at Lebanon Valley College through periods of war, adversity and economic uncertainty.

Today, Lebanon Valley College is increasingly recognized as one of the best small liberal arts colleges in the country. Designated "highly selective" by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, it ranks 50th among the nation's 1,200 four-year public and private comprehensive colleges in the number of its graduates who go on to earn the Ph.D. Lebanon Valley students consistently win Fulbright and other nationally recognized fellowships far out of proportion to their numbers. In the sciences, Lebanon Valley ranks among the 100 most productive colleges and universities in America, according to a study conducted by the United States Office of Technology Assessment.

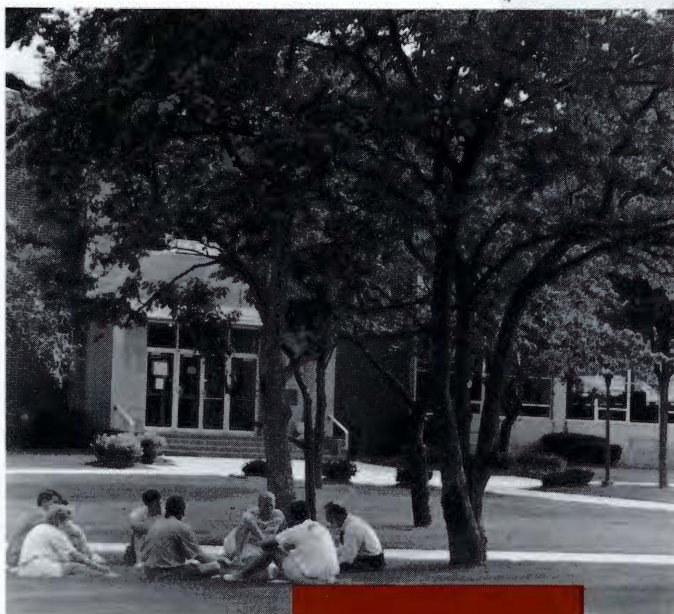

To assure that this legacy of quality continues well into the next century, the college devoted a major portion of the 1990-91 academic year to deciding where it wants to go and what it must do to get there. A strategic planning effort was undertaken in which some 200 trustees, faculty, alumni, parents, staff, students and friends of the college gave of their time, talents and ideas. The yearlong process resulted in the formal adoption by the Board of Trustees of the "Vision for 1996," a set of statements included on the inside back cover of this report. Some of the elements contained in these statements are clearly descriptive of the college as it exists today; others will no doubt require determined effort to achieve.

While planning for the future, the college made progress during its 125th anniversary year in other areas:

- The renaissance of campus facilities continued
- Faculty and students won honors and recognition
- New partnerships expanded educational opportunities
- Cultural programs were increased
- Gifts and grants reached record levels

Improvements to Campus Facilities

Lynch Memorial Hall was rededicated in September 1990 following completion of a $2.1 million renovation project. The main floor now features new seminar rooms, classrooms and computer laboratories and offices for the Departments of Mathematics, Management and Computer Services. On the lower level, renovations provided new offices for the athletic staff and renewed support facilities for intercollegiate athletics, including weight training, wrestling and locker rooms.

Also in September, the college completed a historically sensitive renovation and expansion of Laughlin Hall, a building on Main Street dating back to the 1840s. The building, which variously served the college as a dormitory, office building and residence, will now provide a home for the staff of the Development, College Relations and Alumni Relations offices, which had been housed temporarily in Blair Music Center. By April work was completed in Blair to create an additional sound studio with the latest in recording equipment.

Work on the Administration Building continued in the fall with refurbishment of the first floor for the Registrar's, Continuing Education and Business offices. The second and third floors were prepared for use as a center for the study of the humanities. As the year ended, renovation of the English Department offices was nearing completion.

A project to provide new walkways, benches, lighting and plantings for the academic quadrangle and along White Oak Street was completed by September, greatly improving the look and feel of the campus. By spring, Bollinger Plaza and the area surrounding Laughlin Hall had also begun to be newly landscaped.

Fencil Building on White Oak Street was renovated to accommodate a child care center for college and community families. Much of the work was done voluntarily by members of the Lebanon Builders Association, with additional contributions from several community organizations. Child care services are to be offered under the auspices of Lutheran Social Services.

Faculty and Student Achievements

Lebanon Valley faculty members are dedicated teachers and active scholars who have always been central to the success of the college. The past year brought new recognition of their exceptional quality.

Diane Iglesias, chair of the Department of Foreign Languages, received the Salute to Teachers Award from the Pennsylvania Academy for the Profession of Teaching. James Scott, professor of German, received the Sears-Roebuck Teaching Excellence and Campus Award. Joanne Cole Rosen, adjunct professor of chemistry, won the Nevelyn J. Knisely Award for Inspirational Teaching. Scott Eggert, associate professor of music, received the coveted Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching. Gary Grieve-Carlson, assistant professor of English, won the John C. Hodges Teaching Award.

Phylis Dryden, assistant professor of English, was selected to attend a National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) summer seminar, and James Broussard, chair of the History Department, won an NEH stipend to conduct research. Philip Billings, associate professor of English, together with artist Daniel Massad, published a second volume of Porches, a book of poetry exploring the lives of Annville residents. Professor Billings was also selected to attend a National Council of Teachers of English summer institute. Edward Krebs, assistant professor of economics, was elected to the Pennsylvania State House of Representatives.

Students of Lebanon Valley College continue to be recognized for outstanding promise and achievement. Junior Sara O'Sullivan and sophomore Amy Bonser joined Owen Moe, professor of chemistry, in a project funded by a grant from the Camille and Henry Dreyfus Foundation to develop a modular, instrument-based chemistry course. One student and three recent graduates—junior Karla Rittle, David Myers '89, Christian Hamann '88 and Edward Wirth '90—were co-authors of a paper with Professor Moe published in the Journal of Chemical Education. Rittle also received an award from the Eastern Analytical Symposium. Senior Joseph Souders and sophomore Tavio D'Angelis worked on a project with Michael Day, associate professor of physics, funded by a Cottrell College Science Grant from the Research Corporation. Billie Babe, a junior psychology major, was named 1991 Outstanding Adult Student in Higher Education by the Pennsylvania Association for Adult Continuing Education. Erika Allen and Jill Hamilton, both senior elementary education majors, received funding from the Pennsylvania Higher Education Association Agency to attend the Pennsylvania Science Teacher Education Program.

Partnerships

The college forged important linkages with nearby institutions to accomplish mutually beneficial ends.

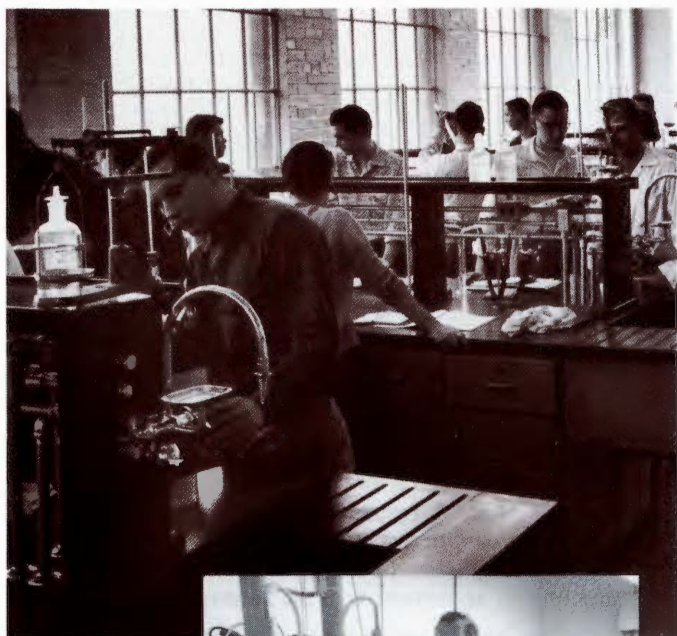

Under an agreement with Franklin & Marshall College in Lancaster, Lebanon Valley will expand continuing education opportunities on the Franklin & Marshall campus beginning in September 1991. Lebanon Valley College will offer certificate programs, associate's and bachelor's degrees, teacher certification, and a master's degree in business administration. The arrangement replaces F & M's for-credit evening division program, which for some years had been limited to awarding associate's degrees.

Art & Design in Lancaster will permit that institution's graduates in interior design, fine arts and communication arts to complete a four-year degree at Lebanon Valley College.

The college completed the second year of its Education Partnership with the Lebanon School District. The partnership is an innovative arrangement designed to increase the number of Lebanon City students who go on to college. Many of the students in the program are minorities. In June, Lebanon Valley was one of 86 colleges and universities across the nation to be honored by The President's Forum on Teaching as a Profession for its efforts to broaden opportunities for minority youth.

Culture on Campus

The college marked the anniversary of its founding by expanding the number and variety of cultural events scheduled during the year. From February through June, hardly a week passed without a concert, theater production, lecture or exhibition opening.

The cultural programs generated so much excitement that a

Public Events Committee was established to assure that a wide range of events will again be available in the coming year. By late June, the college had agreed to provide a home for the Authors & Artists series held for the past decade in Palmyra. This exceptional series, which features world-class lecturers and performing artists, has been called "one of the best in the state" by the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts.

The college also made a commitment to the visual arts by establishing a College Art Committee charged with overseeing, restoring and displaying Lebanon Valley's collection of some 130 works. The committee has supported a plan to renovate the former St. Paul's Lutheran Church on White Oak Street for use as a gallery and small recital hall. Under the committee's supervision, Kansas artist Doug Osa was commissioned to create a panoramic, 8x9-foot painting titled "The Lebanon Valley," in celebration of the college's 125th anniversary. The work, which portrays the valley as seen from the ridge just north of the campus, now graces the main entrance to the Administration Building. The committee also supported the acquisition of a work by Carol Galligan, "The Fourteen Stations of the Cross," which now hangs in the new entrance of the Lynch Memorial Building.

Continuing the Planning Initiative

The strategic planning effort described earlier in this report is serving as the basis for a major self-study launched as part of the reaccreditation process of the Commission on Higher Education/Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools. The Commission requires all colleges to undertake such a study every 10 years. A steering committee chaired by Dale Erskine, associate professor of biology, was appointed to coordinate and oversee the work of a number of task forces studying all aspects of the college. The reaccreditation process will culminate in 1992 with a site visit by a Commission-appointed team of faculty and administrators from other colleges and universities.

A Road Less Traveled

Liberal arts colleges are very special places. Their contributions are legion. Recent evidence suggests that special care must be taken to assure their continued place in American higher education.

A report by David W. Breneman, visiting fellow in economic studies at the Brookings Institution, described liberal arts colleges as "distinguished by a mission of providing four-year baccalaureate education . . . in a setting that emphasizes and rewards good teaching above all else. These colleges tend to enroll small numbers of students; they emphasize liberal education over professional training. They are the source of a disproportionate number of graduates who go on to earn doctorates and to pursue academic careers. Their 'privateness' means that certain values—religious and otherwise—can inform their mission in ways not possible at state institutions; while their small size makes possible a sense of community among students, faculty and staff that can rarely be achieved in larger settings." What a wonderful description of Lebanon Valley College.

Breneman argues that liberal arts colleges must not be taken for granted. In 1970, 689 of the nation's 3,400 colleges and universities were classified as liberal arts colleges under criteria developed by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. Today, only 212 institutions continue to qualify as liberal arts colleges under those same criteria. The rest didn't disappear—they changed their fundamental nature. They bowed to the market pressures that followed more than a decade of declining numbers of high school graduates. In order to attract students they offered more and more career-oriented programs, reducing substantially their commitment to liberal learning.

Even fewer of the 212 remaining liberal arts colleges managed to hold onto the more stringent criteria required to maintain a Division I designation under the Carnegie classification system. Such status is accorded only to those institutions like Lebanon Valley College that award more than half of their degrees in the arts and sciences, and that continue to maintain high selectivity requirements for admission.

Record Support, Growing Enrollments

Lebanon Valley College has stayed the course, maintained the integrity of its programs and remained true to its mission. In so doing the college has prospered, attracting both students and financial support. Despite a recession, gifts received during the year reached record levels. The college met both the Kline Foundation's challenge to the Annual Fund and the Kresge Foundation's Scientific Initiative Challenge. Further, despite declining numbers of high school graduates, by year end it was already evident that total enrollment for 1991-92 would also reach new levels.

Lebanon Valley College is, and always has been, a very special place. Alumni, students, faculty, staff and trustees have a right to feel pride in the college's accomplishments and take pleasure in its growing reputation. To all of you who care for the college and who continue to support and sustain it through your gifts, your service and your talents, thank you.

Sincerely,

We Met the Challenge

Donors are responding to the college's improved physical appearance and to its dynamic academic program, says Charles W. Wolfe.

In many ways, 1990-91 was a banner year for the college, particularly in the generosity of its constituencies. Total giving reached a record $3.3 million, which marked a 17.9 percent increase over the previous year's $2.8 million.

The Annual Fund also achieved a record $785,000 in unrestricted gifts, exceeding the amount required to meet the Josiah and Bessie Kline Foundation Challenge for the third year in a row. I am especially pleased to report that every member of the Board of Trustees contributed to this year's Annual Fund. Special thanks go to Annual Fund Chairman Darwin Glick '58 for his fine efforts.

As this is written, we are looking ahead to the new fiscal year with a new Kline Challenge goal of $867,000. I am pleased to announce that the trustees and staff, along with leading volunteers, are determined to reach and surpass that goal and "make it a million"—$1 million in operating gifts for the academic program. Pete Strickler '47, building on Darwin's good work, will strive to reach that million dollar Annual Fund in 1992.

Lebanon Valley College is achieving new heights, inspired by the many academic strengths of the faculty and students, and the "can do" spirit of the trustees, volunteer leaders on the development committees, and our diligent staff.

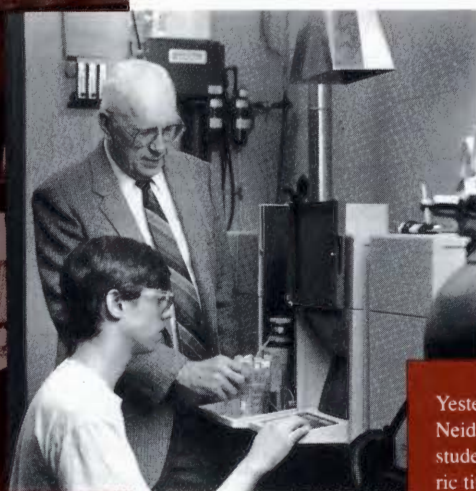

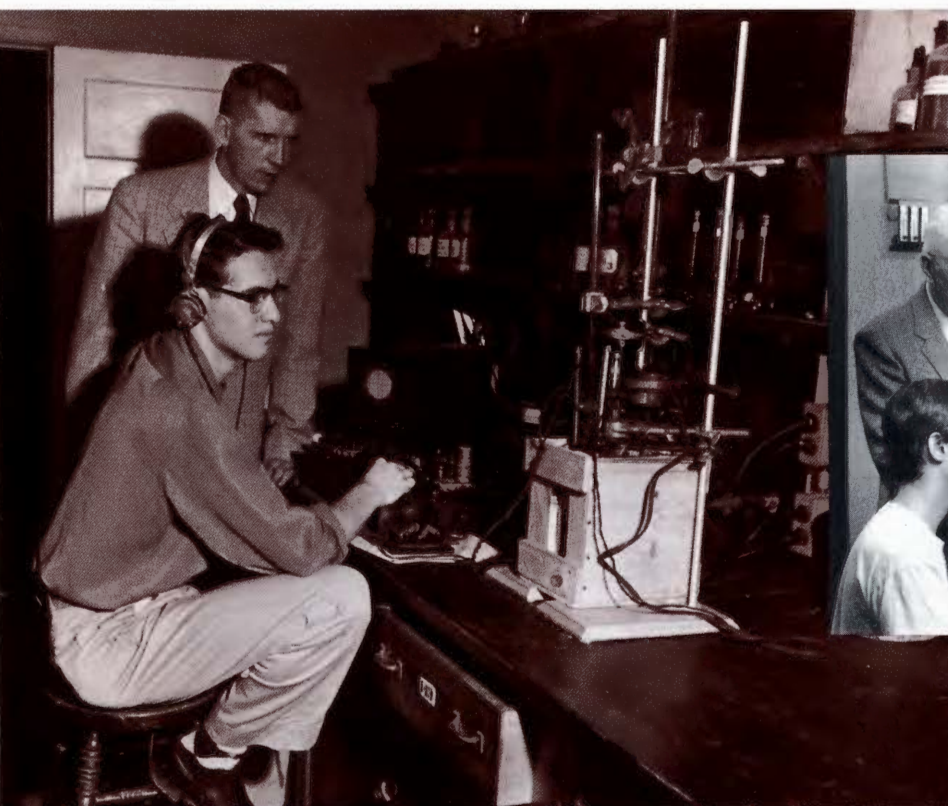

The Alumni Association, under the capable leadership of President Betty Criswell Hungerford '54 and many hardworking alumni volunteers, adopted a new constitution in June, during Alumni Weekend. The new organization, built upon an elected Alumni Council and Officers, will begin functioning early in 1992.

This past year was the first, too, for the Lebanon Valley Education Partnership's Achievement Challenge Golf Tournament. The golf outing raises funds to support the college's partnership with the Lebanon School District. The partnership is designed to encourage more young people to consider a college education, and to provide scholarship funds if they should choose Lebanon Valley. Special thanks go to Tom Reinhart '58, the tournament chair, and to the renowned Sam Bowie, the honorary chair and Lebanon native who now stars for the New Jersey Nets.

Clearly, more and more people who have reason to be interested in Lebanon Valley are being stimulated by and are responding to, the college's dynamic academic program, the improvements in the physical appearance of the campus, and the scholarly endeavors of faculty and students.

The Thomas Rhys Vickroy Society 1990-91 Honor Roll

More than 80 percent of Lebanon Valley College's voluntary support during 1990-91 was contributed by members of the Vickroy Society.

Membership in the Vickroy Society is open to alumni, parents of students and other friends of the college, on an annual basis, renewable each year. The Society recognizes gifts of $1,000 and above given to the college for any purpose during each academic year.

Active memberships are available in the following categories:

Trustee Associate:	A gift of $10,000 and above
Five Founders Circle:	A gift of $5,000 to $10,000
President's Circle:	A gift of $2,500 to $5,000
Society Associate:	A gift of $1,000 to $2,500

Active membership may be fulfilled with gifts of cash, securities, real estate or other property.

Lifetime Vickroy Associates are members whose cumulative contributions to Lebanon Valley College total $100,000 and above. Annual Active and Lifetime Vickroy Society memberships may be held concurrently.

Note: This Honor Roll recognizes Vickroy Society members whose gifts were made during the academic year July 1, 1990 through June 30, 1991 and includes both annual and capital gifts, as well as contributions to endowment.

Annual Gifts Make a Difference

Class agents worked hard to raise the Annual Gifts total, with faculty and staff contributing the largest amount ever, notes Darwin G. Glick.

Gifts to the Annual Fund help provide resources critically needed to fulfill Lebanon Valley's mission of academic excellence and educational opportunity.

In 1988 the college accepted a challenge from the Josiah and Bessie Kline Foundation to raise an incremental $80,000 in annual gifts over each of the ensuing five years. The trustees have set the pace and other college friends have followed their leadership. This challenge has been met in each of the first three years resulting in $240,000 in matching funds given to the college by this supportive foundation.

Alumni and other friends, through their annual giving commitments in the year just ended, enabled Lebanon Valley to meet successfully the third-year target of the five-year Kline Challenge.

Since tuition covers only about three-quarters of the cost of educating our students, income from the Annual Fund is a most important part of the college's operating support. Annual Fund gifts help with every aspect of the educational program, including student financial aid, faculty salaries, both intercollegiate and intramural athletics, religious programs, lecture-ships, and cultural events and campus maintenance, among many others.

Noteworthy Annual Giving accomplishments during 1990-91 included:

- a record unrestricted total of $785,297
- outstanding work by volunteer class agents: Betty Rutherford Daiber '41, Sarah Stouffer Sandy '46, Floyd Baturin '51, Gene Geesey '56, Shirley Landis Dietz '61, Steve Roberts '65, Dave Todoroff '80 and Wendy Carter DeRico '85
- an impressive 33 percent increase in giving by our own faculty and staff—a very special vote of confidence

As I complete my tenure as chairman of Annual Giving I would indeed be remiss if I didn't mention the good work done by my division chairs: Charlie Wolfe '44, Trustees; Suzie Arnold, Friends; Dr. John Norton, Faculty and Staff; Roy McMinds, Business and Industry; Russell and Cathy Dennis P'92, Parents; and Jim Haine '91 and Lynn Smith '91, Senior Gifts.

On behalf of the entire Annual Giving team, thank you to all the good friends of Lebanon Valley College who have helped make the 1990-91 year a resounding success.

Lebanon Valley Education Partnership

The Lebanon Valley Education Partnership is a program being carried out with the Lebanon School District that encourages young people to consider attending college. The three-part program familiarizes students with the college environment, identifies those qualified to pursue a college education, and provides scholarship funds if they should choose Lebanon Valley. Last September, friends of the college and representatives from local industries participated in a golf outing at the Lebanon Country Club, which raised $27,300 for scholarship assistance.

Planned Giving

The Honors Society

The Honors Society of Lebanon Valley College was established on March 15, 1987, to recognize alumni and friends who have planned for the future by naming the college in their will as a beneficiary for $10,000 or more, or by purchasing a charitable gift annuity or giving real estate or insurance policies. This group has pledged over $3 million for future buildings, scholarships and endowment to assure the well-being of Lebanon Valley College.

The 1996 Vision of Lebanon Valley College

Lebanon Valley College's vision derives from a particular configuration of characteristics and offerings . . .

- a selective liberal arts college with an opening enrollment of 900 full-time undergraduates
- a caring community that respects the inherent dignity and worth of its members and is committed to a student-centered learning environment
- a curriculum designed to prepare a diverse student body for a life of service and leadership in a world increasingly global, multi-cultural, technologically driven and environmentally fragile
- strong academic departments using innovative approaches and balanced by a commitment to general education; special strengths in natural sciences, mathematical sciences and music; targeting new strengths as they develop; program options that include leadership studies, international studies and structured internships in many disciplines
- a residential college that supports a strong co-curricular life and offers students a high degree of responsibility
- a church-related college committed to the active exploration of ethics and values both in the classroom and throughout the campus
- an intellectually, socially and aesthetically stimulating campus environment
- a commitment to intramural and intercollegiate athletics as part of a well-rounded college experience
- academic programs designed for adult students
- financial resources that support new initiatives and sustain existing strengths
- facilities and equipment appropriate to the purposes of the institution
- a safe and attractive campus in a rural community with access to major metropolitan areas
- a distinguished record of placement in graduate and professional schools and in employment
